You are very sick. How dare you print such a thing about beautiful Bobby Sherman (Feb. issue). HE OUGHT TO SUE YOU!! When my mother bought that magazine, it was by mistake! I think just throwing it away is too good. I am going to throw it in the fire! When I read your magazine, I felt like urping.

A Bobby Sherman Lover

Ed: Bobby said he can't stand you!

Behold the objective critic, standing alone to report "simply the news. Very simply." Even if the news becomes warped between the actual events and the printed page, it doesn't matter. And so critical you appear to be. No one is spared.

A lot of criticism you toss out has been aimed at people who have and do make obvious their feelings about this nation. Surely you can't be that impartial. Among the criticized are just about every individual or group who makes the headlines. (One possible exception—There has been little if any knocking of the more militant right-wing groups like the Minutemen who, if you ever check them out, are just as much pro overthrowing the government as the members of your apparently frequently used scapegoat, the new left).

Yet, for all your criticism on current events (And even here you falter. Example: Spiro Agnew has long ago stopped being an unknown "V.P. in the White House basement") you criticize and say nothing about correcting the problems.

Will Brady
Ellicot Station
Buffalo, N.Y.

Ed: We don't correct problems, we have enough problems making them.

Yecchh!

Marjorie Dawson
Boston

Ed: That's an honest opinion, Marjorie.

Bright Sayings:

When referring to your oldies (parents) or other squares it is 'in' to call them L7's. This is because if you put "L" and "7" together you have a square.

Julie Petersen
Geraldton, West Aust.
Australia

Ed: Not quite, Julie.

I recently read one of your magazines for the first time (August issue). I think some of your articles are far too suggestive (pro-communist-wise) and you should ease up on mocking and cutting down the Red, White and Blue. It's junk like that, that gives unsuspecting kids the wrong ideas and impressions. Isn't there enough going around as it is?

Instead of spending my money on a magazine that reads like a communist propaganda leaflet. I'd be better off reading anti-communist pamphlets published by the John Birch Society. At least nobody can question their patriotism.

John Hilber
Tacoma, Wash.

Ed: What about their sanity?

I wish to enlighten Miss Wanda Ulko, who had the bad taste to make several unjust comments about Canada, Canadians, and their contribution to world history.

Wanda, I am sick of you and your ilk who are such super-patriots that you cannot see the value of anything that is not a part of the United States. You queried in your letter, "What newsworthy event, good or bad, has Canada contributed to history?" Have you never heard of the Saint Lawrence Seaway? True, it was a joint effort on the parts of Canada and the United States, but it would not have been possible without Canada's participation. The McIntosh apple was developed in Canada in 1811. Bell made the first long-distance telephone call in Canada. The first commercial oil well in North America was in Canada. Basketball was invented by a Canadian. John McCrae, a Canadian, wrote the poem, 'In Flanders Fields.' In World War I, of 424,859 Canadian soldiers who went overseas, 60,661 lost their lives. Insulin was discovered in Canada, and its discoverer, Sir Frederick Banting, was awarded the Nobel Prize. In World War II, over one million Canadians were in the armed forces, 51,992 of whom became casualties. And in case you think the U.S.A. pulled off the Normandy Invasion by itself, go read an unbiased history book. Former Prime Minister Lester Pearson was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1957. The 1965 Eastern North America blackout was caused by a failure at a Canadian hydroelectric plant. Who says Canada hasn't contributed to history?

If you still think Canadians have an inferiority complex, you're sick.

In conclusion, let me point out that I am not, as your probably think, a Canadian super-patriot. I became disillusioned with my native country's policies at home and abroad, so I immigrated to Canada last year—from the United States of America.

Ed: Another little Sick history lesson, readers.

I would like to answer Miss Helen Perry's letter in your mag. Miss Perry, You say you're glad you're a hippie. Aren't they the people that claim to love everyone? I just came back from a mission of love in Vietnam. I went with the U.S. Army, to help an underdeveloped nation know the same freedom we do. The people thanked me with love in their eyes. I asked to go because I LOVE MY COUNTRY, I LOVE MY FLAG. Besides SIT-INS, RIOTS, and TREASON what do you love, Miss Perry?

Sgt. Noel J. Muskett
HHC 1st Bn. MFSS
Fort Sam Houston, Texas

Ed: Peace, baby!

I have considered your book deadly poisonous to the ones who dare to read this sickening thing. But on the other hand it was quite funny. However it was sickening to mock out "Mod Squad." The one I liked was "New Drugs For Hippies!" It really sicked it to me! Well bye for now, Sick. I loved every minute of your sickening book.

The Great Gina Lo Brono
Los Angeles, Calif.

Ed: Thanks, Great, we think.

I think your mag is real funny. The thing I liked best in the August issue was the back cover, "AWARD OF EXCELLENCE in taking out the garbage."

Diedre Nirider
Ipswich, Mass.

Ed: Just one of our public services.

I think your story in the June issue, "The Oddgent," was the most repulsive you ever had. The rest were good. What I want to know is what happened?

Shari Hickey
Ellen Patou
Morro Bay, Calif.

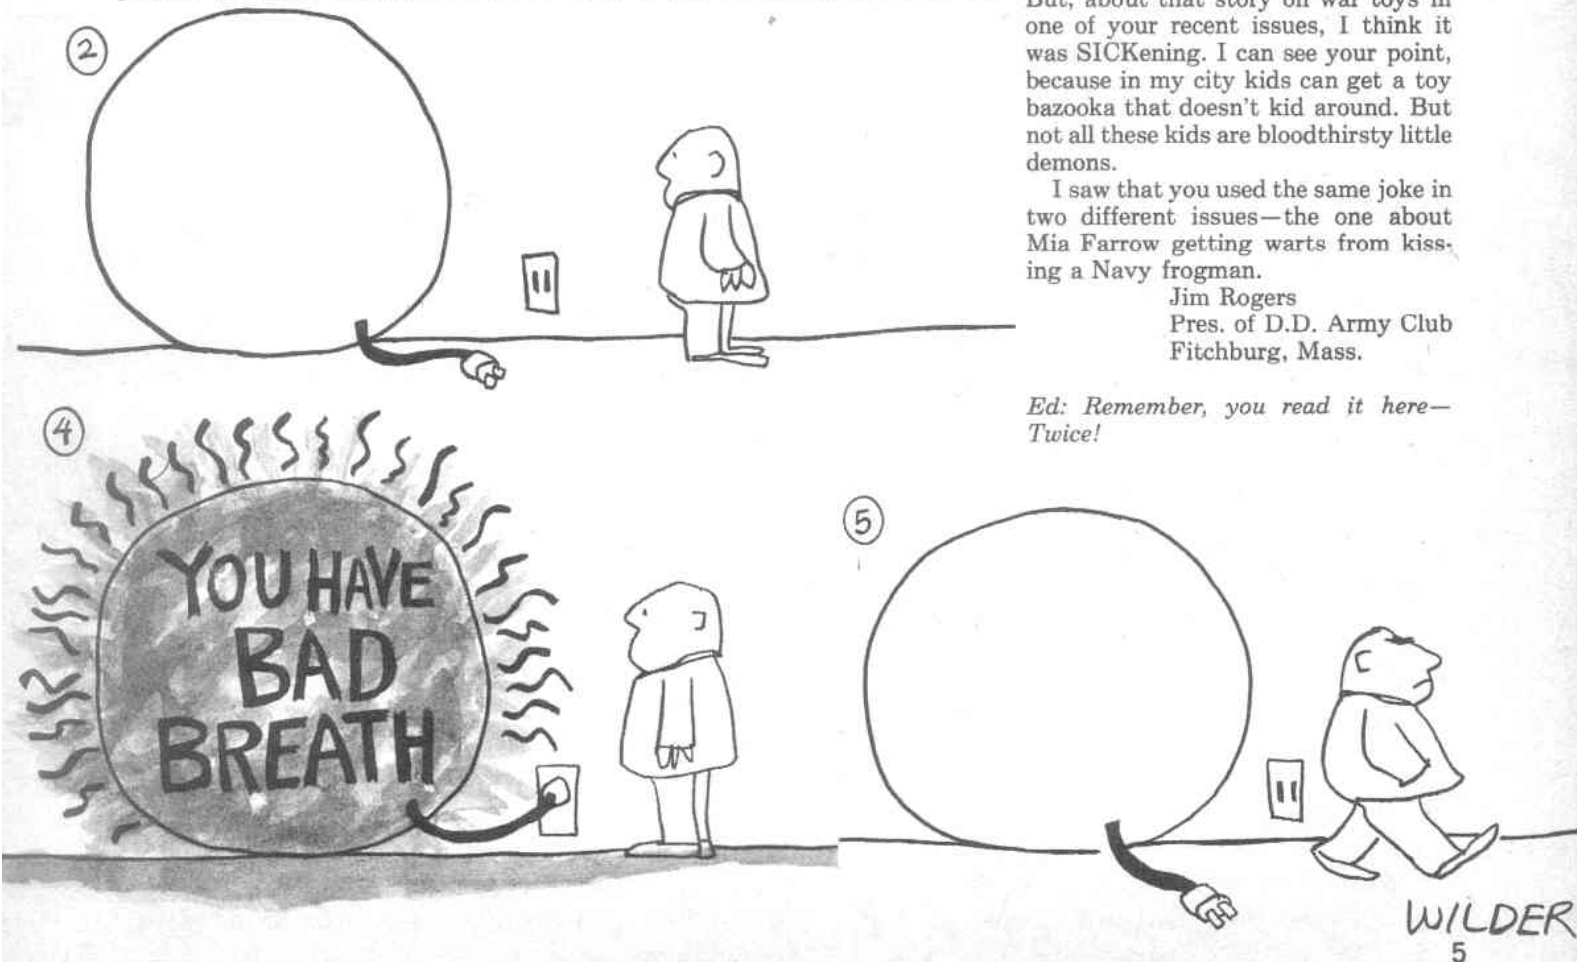

Ed: We can't understand it. Usually they're ALL repulsive.

I think your magazine is fabulous. But, about that story on war toys in one of your recent issues, I think it was SICKening. I can see your point, because in my city kids can get a toy bazooka that doesn't kid around. But not all these kids are bloodthirsty little demons.

I saw that you used the same joke in two different issues—the one about Mia Farrow getting warts from kissing a Navy frogman.

Jim Rogers
Pres. of D.D. Army Club
Fitchburg, Mass.

Ed: Remember, you read it here—Twice!

SHACK-IN'S WORLD

Art by Jack Sparling
Script by Fred Wolfe

The show opens in the office of the secretary of Mr. Shack-In, the head of the studio, who is never seen. Probably because he's dodging agents, would-be stars—and bill-collectors!

After having given the young starlet the full benefit of his long years of casting experience...

You were magnificent in the close-ups, baby, now we'll arrange a full-fledged screen test.

Ooh, Mr. Sweat, how can I ever thank you?

Forget it, kid, you already have!
McCallister, I'd like you to handle this young lady.

You bet, boss!

No, no, McCallister, I mean I'd like you to get her ready for a screen test.

By the way, McCallister. Now that we've practically lined up our leading lady, I still need a leading man. What about Gaylord Sweet?

He's no longer available, boss. They locked him up for grabbing an Oscar.

Since when is grabbing an Oscar a criminal offense?

This Oscar was his swishy hairdresser!

That's right, I forgot about Gaylord. If he were over at M.G.M., the weirdo would probably grab their lion!

O.K., McCallister, take the little lady over to the set and I'll be over later.

Do you think she'll turn in a good performance?

Let me put it this way,
McCallister—I'm sure she'll give you everything she's got!

Oh, if I could only line up my leading man, I'd be all set to go. What I need is another Brando. But, where to find him? I know! I'll try the office of our female acting coach.

We peek into the office of Miss Rebecca Gournisht, a frustrated old maid acting coach. As Jeremy enters, she is babying a new male actor.

There, honey, have another peanut butter sandwich.

That torn T-shirt! It reminds me of...

Lishen, mishter. That T-shirt wasn't torn, until thish chick practically tore it off my back!

That mumbling! I can hardly understand a word you're saying. Rebecca, you've done it again! I've found another Brando!

As the scene fades, we cut to the screen test of the new starlet, Barbara Bare, who is out to show the public her finer points.

All right, we're going to do a scene from "Little Women."—Take one!

Well, McCallister, how did the test come out?

I don't know, boss, we forgot to put film in the camera!

I just got a call from Mr. Shack-In. He was peeking through the keyhole and said that Barbara is A-Okay! Well, I guess that solves our problems on this picture.

I wouldn't make any space on my mantelpiece for an Oscar yet, if I were you Jeremy. Senator Pastore just called and told us the nudity bit on t.v. is a No-No! I'd better get in touch with Mr. Shack-In.

Yes, Mr. Shack-In, he said he'd see to it that the series was cancelled, even if he had to go to the head of the television network.

What? You bought the television network? Every television network? Right after you bought all the hotels in Las Vegas...

And you'd gladly give him a good swift kick, but you'd hurt yourself more than him, because you only wear sneakers.

So, that's why no one ever sees you! Mr. Shack-In—you're Howard Hughes!

RETAIL DISPLAY PROGRAM

Pyramid Publications is pleased to announce the adoption of a retail display program available to all retailers interested in earning a display allowance on those magazines participating in this plan. Under the plan, you will be permitted to select one or more, of the following magazine titles, if desired: Sick Magazine, New Ideas For Hairstyling, New Ideas For Teens, Man's Magazine.

To obtain full details and a copy of the formal contract, please write to: Circulation Department, MacFadden-Bartell Corporation, 205 East 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017.

Under the retail display plan, in consideration of your acceptance and fulfillment of the terms of the formal contract to be sent to you upon request, you will receive a display allowance of ten percent (10%) of the cover price per copy sold by you. This plan will become effective as to all issues of magazine titles selected and delivered to you, subsequent to the date of the written acceptance of our display agreement when received and accepted by our national distributor, MacFadden-Bartell Corporation.

In this picture, Patty Duke plays the part of the type of girl who'd make "Marty" look like the most popular kid on the block! Not only doesn't Patty know what she's "doing tonight," but she's also got big problems with weekdays and matinees. Rather than take Patty out, her blind dates commit hari-kari with the pin on her corsage. The movie deals with our heroine's life all the way from childhood to wildhood when Bratalie finally decides to make the scene in Greenwich Village where, compared to the rest of the weirdos, she comes on almost normal.

Me, Bratalie

Art by Bill Robinson

Script by Fred Wolfe

The movie begins as Bratalie's mother tries to coax her out from under the bed, where she is hiding because she's so ugly, and because she has just belted one of the little boys who let her in on the fact.

Let's face it, mother. I have big ears, a funny nose and buck teeth.

Yes, but many an ugly duckling has grown up into a beautiful swan. You'll see, Bratalie, when you grow up, you'll look like a regular movie star.

MADISON AV. VERSION OF UGLY, NOTE DANDRUFF

So Bratalie grew up into her teens and found out that despite her big ears, funny nose and buck teeth, she now looked like a famous movie star—Bugs Bunny! To make matters worse, Bratalie's best friend, Betty, a living doll, insists on taking Bratalie along on all her dates

Hey, Betty, why do you always drag along that drag, Bratalie? Especially tonight.

—even those dates where the “car runs out of gas.”

Gee, Albert, you know how lousy I am at arithmetic—I brought her along to keep score!

HELP!

Even at dances, Bratalie always comes out on the short end.

I'm getting desperate!

OH BOY ABOY!

Bratalie, would you mind getting off that chair?

Why, no.

Thanks.

Trying to pawn off their daughter, Bratalie's parents set up a blind date with a young optometry student who they promise to set up in business, if he'll take Bratalie off their hands.

How do you do, Bratalie. Why, you're absolutely gorgeous!

Run along, kids, and have a good time!

We'll have a big night on the town, Bratalie, but first I've got to stop off at my father's optometry office.

Later...

What happened, Bratalie? I thought you two hit it off very well.

Yes, in fact, he told me you were the most beautiful thing he's ever seen.

Yes, but that was before he stopped off at his father's optometry shop—he had his prescription changed!

But there is one man who has always loved Bratalie and really believed she was beautiful, and he's retiring from the Navy—probably on a "Section Eight!" She runs to visit him at his new job in a pharmacy shop.

Hmm. That kid with the funny mask on. It must be Halloween.

All right, girlie, what is it—trick or treat?

Don't you recognize me, Uncle Harold? I'm Bratalie. When I was little, you used to call me your beautiful princess.

But, you're gruesome—I mean, you grew some since then.

You're just like all the rest of them—they all say I look like Bugs Bunny.

Nonsense, Bratalie, that's not true. And to prove it to you, I'll take you out to dinner. Tell me, what do you like to eat? —Carrots?—Lettuce?

After handing Bratalie a line about beauty only being skin deep and all that phoney jazz, and to prove he's on the level, Uncle Harold tells Bratalie that he is getting married to a very plain girl who he is bringing home to dinner at Bratalie's house.

Hello, folks, this is my fiance—Lola La Wow!

But I thought you said she was a very plain girl.

She is, Bratalie. You should have seen some of those other broads in the chorus line!

Well, Lola and I must be running. Before she returns to work at the Club Au Go-Go, we're off to a skiing weekend at Lake Tahoe.

But, it's only Autumn, there's no snow on the ground.

You'll be forced to stay in your room all day.

Yeah, how about that!

Bratalie comes home and sees her father sad-faced and her mother crying.

What's the matter?

We don't know how to break this to you, Bratalie, but your Uncle Harold had a bad heart.

Shortly after he spend the weekend with that Miss Go-Go...

He went—went!

Maybe it's all for the best. A hussy like that would probably have made his life miserable.

I don't know about that. They say it took the undertaker a whole week just to wipe the smile off his face!

Now with the last man gone who ever showed her any affection, Bratalie decides to make the break with her past and swims the distance from Brooklyn to Greenwich Village —Bratalie had led a sheltered life and didn't know they had already built a bridge!

Maybe in Greenwich Village I'll be able to find a boy.

But at the moment, they all seem to be tied up! First, though, I better get a room.

Do you rent rooms to girls?

Yes, no matter what sex they are! By the way, dear, this building doesn't have an elevator and you're on the top floor. But, you can use the dumb-waiter, if you like.

Bratalie crams herself and her suitcase into dumb-waiter and pulls on ropes to ascend, when it's opened on the way up by a male tenant, James Farrentino.

Who left the garbage on the dumb-waiter?

Hi, it's me, Bratalie, your new neighbor!

You're just what I've been looking for!

Can this be love at first fright?

You, put on your clothes, and get lost!

You threw that beautiful nude model out of your apartment for me? You, an artist, with an eye for beauty?

Beautiful dames are a dime a dozen. You've got what I've been searching for for years—those holes in the face—that rippled acne—it's perfect!

For painting a portrait?

What portrait? I'm an advertising artist. I'm looking for someone who can pose for animal crackers!

Every year thousands of young people make their way to New York City to pursue careers, attend schools or just visit. What are their impressions of this modern Baghdad? If you readers have ever visited Fun City, you may recognize yourself in this crowd...

Psst! hey, Mac, do you want to buy Central Park? Only 25 bucks.

No, thanks. I don't have room for it in my suitcase.

THE PIGEON PROBLEM

Art by Al Bare

Script by Bill Majeski

NEWS ITEM:

City authorities all over the country start feeding pigeons food containing built-in birth control elements.

Naturally, our city fathers took care of them, putting them up at Byrd Manor Inn, but there they starved to death just because they were too dumb to know how to ring for room service. Gentlemen, what can we do about this pigeon problem?

Mr. Pout, I suggest you carry an umbrella!

Not that problem. The population problem.

Why not genocide? Only call it birdicide. Kill the pigeons and turn them into badminton shuttlecocks. Where's your athletic know-how?

Let's train them all to be homing pigeons. We'll send them away, and when they're gone, we'll move the city!

Nobody kills pigeons, Mr. Scurry.

I have a suggestion from a Doctor Stymie. He has developed some pigeon food for birds with a built-in birth control pill. We limit the birth rate and our statues will smile again.

Sounds great. But can it work? I mean I like statues as well as the next man, but can this plan work?

Doctor Stymie tested his food for a full year in Washington, D.C. And it worked. During that time not one statue was born.

The two spacemen were heading toward the moon in their rocket and to while away the time, one was busy composing a song. "hey, Joe", said he, "what rhymes with June?" All these years the moon has been an inspiration for poets and romance. Ten years from now it'll be just another parking lot. Here are some scenes from a paperback book published by Pyramid Books. We wanted editor Phil Hirsch to tell us more about it, but he was —

"Well, we learned one Martian word..."

OUT TO LAUNCH

"I'm terribly sorry but the doctor doesn't make house calls!"

"9:25, cats, and this is Jolly Jasper taking time out for the news..."

"Early this morning, leading scientists and astronomers confirmed their findings and definitely concluded that on Saturday at 3:57 a.m. the giant comet will collide with the Earth..."

"Jolly Jasper back again, folks, for more of your favorite recordings..."

"If that's my wife, tell her I've gone to the moon."

"I hate to tell you this, Bill, but you can't go with us. It's—uh—frankly, it's your bad breath."

"Here we go again!"

NEW STAMPS

Script by Bill Majeski
Art by Al Bare

Have you noticed the new type of postage stamps now being printed by the Government? No? Well, if you haven't, please be informed that the Government is honoring just about everything and anything with their stamps. Here are reproductions of some of the new stamps and the people and incidents they commemorate.

This stamp is in honor of the birth of New York City.

This stamp honors the year of the collapse of New York City.

This item honors Dr. Timothy Leary's first experiments with whatever it is he experiments with. Naturally, it's an airmail stamp. It's also an old joke, but so is Dr. Leary.

This is in honor of the unfortunate delicatessen owner Nathan Greenspan who put LSD in his lox and saw Golda Meir singing "Temptation."

No stamp collection is complete without this one honoring Playboy Archie Smattergee, the first man to die from an overdose of marriage.

The Audubon Society is pleased with this number. It honors Liberace's Leaping Bird—now extinct.

Explorers are favorites among the people who pick out our stamps. This one honors Adolphus Grustecki, the man who discovered a new route to the Loft's Candy Warehouse.

This commemorates the New Year. Painter Van Gogh wishes everyone present at a party a very "Happy New 'ear."

Outdoor sports enthusiasts are pleased with this 6-cent stamp honoring Bensenhart Twillibee, winner of the 700-mile wheelchair mountain climb. He did it with a nurse on his lap most of the way.

This stamp will commemorate forever, Stanley Furtive, the first man who made crank phone calls to Pat Boone.

This stamp commemorates Andrew Kiskahny, the man who invented the alarm clock with half an alarm, so that when it rings, only the wife wakes up.

This one is in honor of Americus Vesperini, the man who was architect of Jerry Vale's birthplace.

And finally, a hitherto unsung man will be remembered via the stamp route. He is Andrew Gripp, Hollywood extra. He was lashed to death in a movie studio when Raquel Welch's bra strap broke. It will be a special delivery stamp.

I WAS SHOCKED
BEYOND BELIEF WHEN . . .

He Wanted to Kiss Me on the First Date!

I had just met Seymour and right away I could see he was the shifty type. I could see I was going to have trouble with him. I mean, the way he looked at me with those small beady eyes. The way he stroked my wrists with those long pointed fingernails. The way he spoke to me with those hot panting syllables. I thought to myself, wow!—here was a guy who was going to try to kiss me on the first date!

And as it turned out, I was so right. We went to dinner and a show and had a marvelous time. Everything seemed to be progressing nicely but no sooner had we gotten to my front door than he grabbed me passionately and tried to kiss me!

What can I tell you, I was flabbergasted! Utterly and totally shocked beyond belief! Out of my mind with shame and horror! After all, here was a boy I had met not three hours ago and he wanted to kiss me there and then!

I mean, it was preposterous. I didn't want him to kiss me after we went out. I'm a modern swinger. I wanted him to kiss me before we went out!

HE LOOKED LIKE THE STUDIOUS TYPE BUT ...
AS SOON AS I GOT INTO HIS HOT ROD
HE JUMPED ME!

I know now that I should never have gotten into the back seat of that hot rod with Felix. That was my first bad move. And no sooner had I made that move than he jumped me!

I was so surprised and so shocked I couldn't believe my own eyes. I made another quick move to the right but, lo and behold—he jumped me again! It was incredible! Fantastic! I was never so humiliated in all my life! Here he was playing me for a sucker. To him it was nothing more than a great big game!

And that's how it went. Whenever and wherever I would move he would jump me. In that unusually small area there wasn't any place I could move without him being there right on top of me. I knew we were playing the game but this was ridiculous. I just stood there helpless, unable to stop him from beating me. I lost something that night I can never hope to regain.

It was too much, I tell you. It was the most incredible game of checkers I ever played!

... TO HIM IT WAS ALL A GAME!

HAIRDO OF THE MONTH

This exciting new hairdo from the salons of Paris combines both the modern-day casual look with the old-fashioned conservative styling, creating a tantalizing new coiffure. It is guaranteed to make you more attractive to the opposite sex. And the beauty part of it is—this hairdo looks even better on girls, rather than on the boy pictured here.

A TEENAGE GIRL'S LAMENT:

MOTHER WARNED ME TO STAY AWAY FROM BOYS LIKE HERBIE KLOTZ!

...BUT HE WAS MORE THAN JUST ANOTHER GUY IN MY LIFE!

Yes, mother warned me about boys like Herbie Klotz. If she told me once she told me a thousand times, "Stay away from boys like Herbie Klotz!" But I was young and reckless and besides how could I? How could I when I felt closer to Herbie than any other boy I had ever known? How could I when our lives were so interwoven? How could I when we were actually living together under the same roof?

But it isn't as bad as it sounds. After all, we grew up together. As children we used to play together. In fact, we were always together. And we knew even then that when we got older we would still be together. We just both knew that it was more than just a simple boy-girl relationship.

Only mother kept insisting. "That Herbie Klotz," she used to say, "is a terrible boy. A delinquent. No good will ever come of him. You mark my words. Believe me, I know human nature. He's a bum. He's nothing but a bum. And he'll never be anything but a bum!"

That's what I kept hearing over and over again. I never knew a woman could hate a young boy so much. She kept telling me what a rotten person he was. But I didn't listen to mother. And why should I? After all, Herbie Klotz wasn't just another boy in my life. Herbie Klotz was my brother!

This book is written in straightforward, blunt language, mainly because the author is a straightforward, blunt man... You owe it to yourself to stop guessing, relying on superstition, following old-fashioned notions and other idiocies which rob you of happiness. You owe it to yourself to get this book—which only robs you of $1.98!

BLUNT FACTS WITH BLUNT ILLUSTRATIONS

This completely blunt 10,796-page book tells you all you have to know to get along with the opposite sex. If you want to get along with the same sex, just read it backwards. It bares all the facts, leaves nothing to the imagination and is such a sizzler it was banned in Greenwich Village!

DO NOT SEND MONEY

Send no money. Just fill in the coupon. The postman will then deliver your book. He will read you one chapter. If you don't get excited in 15 minutes, keep the book and send the postman back. We will send you another postman in a few days.

Our favorite personality these days is lovable Tiny Tim and we never miss one of his sterling performances. But we're worried: What if something happened to him, like a cold or worse—a bad haircut. Who would replace him? It's obvious that a face like his couldn't be duplicated. Yet, there is a solution. Any good makeup man could fit the right person with a Tiny Tim nose and hairdo and come up with a reasonable facsimile. Here are some examples. See if you can identify them and choose the—

Price: $1.79—Woolworths

THE SPORTSCAR

FOREIGN

If you can't be a jet-setter, this will do. Completely transistorized and Solid State, gets 75 miles to the gallon of soy sauce.

Price: 15,000,000,000 yen

DRAGSTER

Even now the influence of pro drag racing is making itself known. Guaranteed to leave 4 pounds of rubber on your driveway as you take off for work.

Price: 3 tires per week*

* Fox tail optional

CUSTOM

When not happy with the other options open to you, go custom. Make sure you're loaded with bread though, or you'll be eating crusts.

Price: If you gotta ask you can't afford it!

HIPPY

Has that woebegone pan-handled look so much in vogue with the IN crowd. Designed to look scroungy with stripes & flowers hand painted by Andy Pot-hole.

Competition in the Sportscar manufacturing complex has brought about a fierce war for the consumer dollar, with designers coming off the walls with new concepts. As a result, confusion reigns supreme in the sportscar market. Sick offers this helpful guide to add to it.

TEAMSTER

Diesel powered; made by Detroit for truck drivers and back-hoe operators. Especially suited for cruising the crowded freeways on Sunday Afternoon.

Price: $11.50 an hour for anything under 30 hours

SWINGER

Aimed at the "plugged-in generation", the first practicable electric sportscar comes fully equipped with 3,000 kilometers of extension cord.

Price: Con Ed would not release the figures to us.

SPORTSCARS OF THE FUTURE!

WRAPAROUND WINDSHIELDS

An innovation which will completely eliminate the need for seatbelts.

CONCEALED HEADLAMPS,

GAS TANKS, WINDOWS,
ANTENNAS AND DOORS.

LARGER AIR SCOOPS

Detroit will discover a method of harnessing air pollution as a sportscar fuel.

EVOLUTION of the SPORTSCAR CONGESTION ON

1975—Rear wheels larger...

1980—Front wheels larger...

1985—Single seaters...

The sportscar as it stands today is impractical, too expensive to run and maintain, unreliable, uninsurable, unpredictable, leaky, and drafty. These are just a FEW of the reasons young people love them. But with so much against them, changes will HAVE to come. Here are a few predictions—

TRIPLE HEADLAMPS

Great for faking out the dummies in the opposite lane. Guaranteed to blind an approaching driver at 1.5 miles.

AIR FOILS

We won't be able to drive through traffic, so makers will add wings enabling us to rise above it.

RACING STRIPES

We won't be able to exceed a speed of 22.5 miles per hour, but cleverly designed stripes will give us all the feeling of the Indy 500.

THE HIGHWAYS, AIR POLLUTION AND THE INCREASING NEED FOR ECONOMY WILL LEAD TO:

1990—Smaller engines...

1995—Spartan chassis...

2,000—Turn of the Century.

moments like these don't deserve KADOK film

Aren't you sorry you have those pictures to remind you of those miserable moments last fall? Who wants to remember Johnny's broken leg? And why would anyone take a picture of Chester at that Dude Ranch when he fell off the horse and broke his back? Or Aunt Bertha when she rolled over the river bank and cracked seven ribs? True, we won't be making as much money here at Westman Kadok when you stop taking all of those worthless snapshots, but at least our conscience will be more at ease, when we're not brainwashing you to spend your hard-earned money on our products.
